JOSEPH BALL'S ESTATE

Seems to Be a Myth of the Most Pronounced Variety.

MANY INQUIRIES ABOUT IT.

The Treasury Officials Inform the Deceased Heirs That There is No Money in the Department For Distribution.

Washington, Oct. 11.—The treasury department has had many inquiries from time to time about the alleged estate of one Joseph Ball of Philadelphia, which is supposed to be held in trust by the treasury department. The letters speak of this trust and of an alleged 84-year lease given by Mr. Ball to certain valuable property in Philadelphia.

Some time ago it was stated that ex-President Harrison was interested as an attorney in the estate. Many hundreds of people all over the country have been drawn into the struggle for the money which they erroneously imagine lies in the treasury awaiting distribution.

To all of these inquiries replies are sent out informing the "heirs" that there is no such fund in the treasury, and that the only record in the treasury department of "Joseph Ball of Philadelphia" relates to a claim of about $3,000 which he filed as an underwriter against the government in 1801 for cargoes seized by the French. The claim is one of the ordinary French spoliation claims.

GEOGRAPHIC NAMES.

Nomenclature of Lakes, Rivers and Towns in Alaska.

Washington, Oct. 11.—The United States board on geographic names, which meets here at stated intervals, has rendered decision determining the spelling of 149 geographic names.

These include a number in Alaska, significant at this time in view of the Klondike excitement. Many variations of nomenclature for the same place are encountered, and the board's action settles the uniform usage. Following is a summary of action taken relating to places conspicuously mentioned in the gold stories. As to Klondike, the decision is to spell it as here given, and not Klondyke, Klondyke, Chanlyke, Chandike, or Deer, Reindeer, Phronidike nor Thron Dluok. One of the lakes of the upper Yukon was named Leabarge by the Western Union telegraph expedition in 1895, after Mike Leabarge, a member of the exploring party, who is now living somewhere near Ottawa, Canada. Late publications have fallen into the error of spelling this Leabarge, but the board adheres to the original form Leabarge. There is a Leabarge river in Alaska.

When Schwatka descended the Yukon in 1883 he named one of the lakes on its headwaters Lindeman, after Dr. Moritz Lindeman, now vice president of the Bremen Geographical society. This sometimes appears erroneously as Lindemann and Linderman. The board adopts Lindeman.

One of the principal tributaries of the upper Yukon is the Lewis river, named by Mr. Robert Campbell of the Hudson Bay company, about 1845. This is often misnamed Lewis.

The inlet, river and village at the head of Lynn canal, which now appears in the newspapers almost daily under the form of Dyea, the starting point for the overland route, is an Indian word which has appeared in many forms. Admiral Meade, in 1869, wrote it Trya. Kruse in 1882 wrote it Dejah. Schwatka, Dyer, Hall in 1883, Taya. The board adopts the form Taya.

For the lake and river variously called Hootalingua or Hotalinga, or Teslin-Hina or Teslin Too, or Teslin, the board adopts Teslin. The termination Hina and Too are said to mean liver in different Indian dialects.

Commercial Relations.

Washington, Oct. 11.—The bureau of foreign commerce of the senate department is just now busily engaged in the preparation for publication of the volume known as "Commercial Relations of the United States," embodying annual reports from United States consuls in every country in the world upon the trade conditions in their respective districts. Within the past three years the quality and the value of this annual publication of the business interests have improved in astonishing degree.

Flouring Mill Burned. Atkinson, Kas., Oct. 11.—Fire, which started at 2 3 a. m., destroyed the flouring mill and warehouse of John A. Cain, together with contents, the flouring mill and contents belonging to the Central mills, the Cain block, a two-story brick structure containing our stores, and five small frame buildings. The aggregate loss is about $5,000, insurance about one-third.

WAITING FOR FROSTS.

Fail Term of Industrial School to Be Abandoned.

NEW CASES IN NEW ORLEANS

The Fever Situation Remains About the Same in the Southern Metropolis. One Fatality Occurs Shortly After Report Is Made.

Jackson, Miss., Oct. 11.—There are no new cases of yellow fever at Natchitoches. At Edwards there are nine new cases four of which are of colored persons, and one death, that of Mr. John Y. Young.

The state board of health has advised the industrial institute at Columbus, Miss., not to open the fall term until general frosts occur in the state.

FEVER SITUATION.

No Improvement of the Plague at New Orleans.

New Orleans, Oct. 11.—The fever situation here grew no better. New cases appeared in various portions of the city, many of them, however, being reported in houses where there was already infection. There were several deaths, and in one case the fatality occurred not long after the report of the case was brought to the attention of the board.

Three persons were reported sick in the Call family on Rousseau street, between Sorapara and First street. During the day one of them died.

The second death among the cases in Algiers was reported. It was Miss Casalar. In the other fatal Algiers case the patient was removed to the isolation hospital and died there.

Two of the deaths were in Carrollton, which relative to population, has furnished more fatal cases than any locality in the city.

Among the new cases is that of Mrs. Sampson. Her husband, Dr. Sampson, and their son were taken ill three days ago, and the infection has spread in the premises.

Another physician is on the list of cases reported, Dr. Otto Lerch, but he is not reported to have a serious attack. Dr. Barnett and Dr. Howard Oliphant are both reported to be progressing favorably toward recovery.

Among the new cases is that of A. E. Read, second engineer of the steamship Valleda. He was taken sick on the vessel and immediately removed to the Toura infirmary. The steamer had been disinfected and extra precautions taken to prevent a spread of the fever among others of the crew.

Miss Carrie Becker, who died, was only reported ill. Her mother was announced to have yellow fever.

This is the record of deaths: Armand Gauditz, Carrie W. Becker, Annie Casalar, John McEary. — Call.

Yellow Jack at Galveston.

Galveston, Oct. 11. Before a meeting of the Galveston board of health Dr. Gutierrez made the following statement:

A MYSTERIOUS DEATH.

Mrs. Depeyster, a Canton Character Roasted Alive.

HER HUSBAND SUSPECTED.

As a Climax to a Quarrel It Is Thought He Saturated Her Clothes With Oil and Set Them on Fire.

Canton, O., Oct. 11.—Residents of the tenderloin district at daylight, who investigated screams, saw a column of flames in the rear yard of the home of William Depeyster. In the flames was found Mrs. Depeyster, and before aid could be rendered she was dead, the clothing burned from her body and her flesh literally roasted. The kitchen of the house was covered with oil spots and fragments of a broken lamp were found in the house and yard.

Mr. Depeyster would give no explanation of what had occurred, and was placed under arrest on suspicion of murder. Neighbors say he and his wife had been quarrelling all night.

Maggie Greathouse, who was on the second floor of the building all night, was taken in custody by the officers as a witness. She gives no light on the case beyond stating that they quarrelled shortly after midnight.

She tells of a former attempt Depeyster made to kill his wife several months ago, when he was arrested for disorderly conduct. She says, after a protracted quarrel between Depeyster and his wife, she went to their room in answer to a call for help, and found Mrs. Depeyster night robe on fire and saturated with oil, which Depeyster had poured over her before breaking the lamp. He had ignited the garment. The two women bought him off and extinguished the flames. The Depeysters have borne unenviable reputations for some time, and have conducted several questionable places. Mrs. Depeyster's reputation has been unsavory for several years. Depeyster comes from a well-to-do family, and was a railroad man up to three years ago, when he married this woman, since which he had been in bad pursuits.

Opinions differ as to how Mrs. Depeyster's clothing was ignited. It was at first supposed that a lighted lamp had been thrown at her, but as the burner to the lamp can not be found and nothing in the room where the oil was spilled was burned, leaving no evidences of an explosion, some of the officers believe that the plan described by the Greathouse woman on a former occasion was the one which caused the tragedy.

Subcommittee's Report.

Washington, Oct. 11.—The monetary commission will reconvene in this city. During the recess the subcommittee on metallic currency, consisting of C. Stewart Patterson of Philadelphia, Professor Laughlin of Chicago and Mr. Garnett of California, has been in session and has embodied the result of their preliminary work in a report which will be submitted to the full commission. The report is not in such shape, however, that it can be made public.

Very Unique Requiem.

St. Louis, Oct. 11.—The requiems of the funeral of Edward J. McBride were the most unique that ever marked a funeral in St. Louis. His dying request was that the only music at his funeral should be from the banjos of his friends, they to make the selections. Among the selections played by a trio were "Massa's in the Cold, Cold Ground," and an air from the "Bohemian Girl." These were favorite tunes with the deceased.

Serious Conflagration.

New York, Oct. 11.—Fire in First avenue caused the destruction of and damaged the property to the aggregate amount of $50,000. The heaviest loss, $35,000, was sustained by John Lenz, manufacturer of ice boxes and bar fixtures, and owner of the buildings burned. The fire threatened the occupants of a group of tenement houses, who were obliged to leave their beds for the streets.

Old Soldier Suicides.

London, O., Oct. 11.—William Guyton, a survivor of Company A, Fortieth Ohio Volunteer infantry, committed suicide by jumping off the Little Darby bridge. He has been suffering from old army wounds and became despondent.

Made Mr. Tramp Flee.

Alexandria, O., Oct. 11.—Judson H. Carter's daughter drove off a tramp at the point of a gun. The tramp, seeing she was alone, became insolent, and the girl made an excuse to go to another part of the house, when she secured the gun.

Burned by Gasoline.

Kenton, O., Oct. 11.—Mrs. Waters, a widow, was severely burned on face and hands by the explosion of gasoline in an open jug which had been left too near the fire.

DETECTIVE MOORE

Committed to the Tombs Prison for Killing His Wife.

New York, Oct. 11.—Central Office Detective William Moore of this city, who is under arrest of having stabbed his wife to death last week, was committed to the Tombs prison.

The most damaging evidence against the detective was given by a neighbor, who said he heard Moore in the house on the afternoon of the tragedy. Two boys also say that between 1 and 2 p. m., on Wednesday, they saw the detective leaving his home.

Moore denies that he killed his wife, and says that he was in the Wall street district all day Wednesday until 3 p. m., when he got word from police headquarters that there was something wrong at his home, and then he went up town and found his wife dead.

The effort to suppress the fact that his wife had died from a stab wound of the abdomen and the burning of the murdered woman's clothing at the time of her death, all tend against Moore.

Minimum Bid Guaranteed.

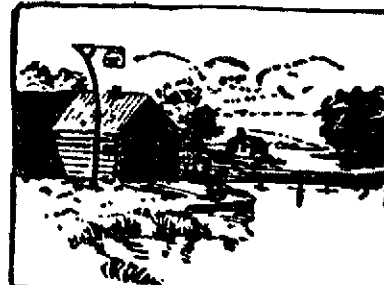

Washington, Oct. 11.—Attorney General McKenna issued an official statement announcing that the government had decided not to appeal the Union Pacific foreclosure but to allow the railroad to be sold on Nov. 1 in consideration of the Union Pacific reorganization committee raising its guaranteed bid from $45,754,000 to $50,000,000. The road, he added, is to be sold to the highest bidder, but with a minimum bid guaranteed as stated.

The Drought Unprecedented.

Fort Scott, Kan., Oct. 11.—In southeastern Kansas the drouth that has continued unbroken for over two months is unprecedented. In Cherokee, Crawford and Montgomery counties not half an inch of rain has fallen in three months.

Eagles May Take a Soar.

London, Oct. 11.—It is stated that the price of eagles will be raised in the event of further heavy withdrawals of gold, although the Bank of England has printed handsomely by the recent sales.

50 Years of Cures.

A LOVE LAUGHS.

DECEASED WITHOUT CAUSE, TWO YOUNG FOLKS MARRY AGAIN.

Another Case of Parental Interference That Come to Naught Young Lovers Could Not Remain Apart The Stern Father
May Do His Worst.

Matthew Sterling Borden, Yale '95, son of C. D. Borden of New York and Chicago, multimillionaire, who returned in defiance of parental authority to the young woman from whom he was separated three years ago, has remarried her. She is Miss Mildred Negbauer, the daughter of Julius Negbauer, a Jewish tailor of Chapel street, New Haven. Young Borden was a student in the academic department of Yale, when, in 1893, he met the tailor's daughter. He became infatuated with her and his love was returned. After a period of courtship the young couple went through the ceremony of a secret marriage. Young Borden took his wife to his apartment to live with him. His parents then resided in Chicago. It was comparatively easy for him to conceal the fact of his marriage from the college authorities.

One day in 1894 Mr. Borden, Sr., without any previous warning, walked into the young man's apartment, to find the latter and his young wife there. Explanations were demanded, and there was a scene.

C. D. Borden then consulted a firm of lawyers in New Haven as to what was best to be done, and upon their advice the young man was taken home. He was sent off to Europe with Professor Tracey Peck of Yale university. Under the latter's tuition young Borden continued his studies in Rome so assiduously that in 1895, upon his return, he was permitted by the Yale faculty to graduate with the class in which he had originally entered.

Meantime Mr. C. D. Borden's New Haven lawyers had effected a settlement with the girl bride and her parents by the terms of which she was to receive a certain amount of money, $15,000 it was said, on condition that she should secure a divorce from her husband. Her expenses to Detroit as well as the legal expenses in obtaining the divorce were all paid, and within a year she returned home free. She purchased a handsome residence at the corner of Park and George streets, New Haven, and had her family move into it. There she has since entertained her young friends in handsome style, giving the impression that she was provided for generously by the Borden.

To all outward appearance the romance had then ended. Both parties had solemnly agreed to hold no communication with each other, and it is said that they adhered to the agreement up to six weeks ago. Young Borden, upon his graduation at Yale, entered a New York medical school and has pursued his studies there for two years. In another year he expected to graduate in medicine. Six weeks or so ago the embers of the old love were fanned into flame, and he paid a flying visit to New Haven. He met his former bride and spent several hours at her house. He went again and again and spent longer visits with her until a few days ago, when they left, informing her parents that they were going to New York to get married.

Before leaving for New York they had planned their future. They would seek the consent of the prospective bridegroom's father, and if this was obtained all would be smooth sailing in the future. Should he still be unrelenting, they were to be married in spite of his objection and threats of disinheritance. The young woman said as she left her home:

"Matthew, I'll stick to you if you will stand by me, and I guess that we will get along."

He vowed to stand by her, and thus they departed. A letter has been received from the young woman by a friend, in which she says that she and Borden have been remarried and that hereafter they will make their home in New York.—New York Sun.

York and Cork.

The Duke of York's recent visit to Ireland recalls a story which appeared in the London newspapers about 30 years ago with regard to the intimate relations which existed between the late Duke of York, son of George III, and an Irish bishop. A poor drunken clergyman named Ponsobly died in the east end of London in great destitution, and it appeared that he had been placed within the church under the following circumstances: The Duke of York owed Ponsobly money, and in order to pay the debt proposed giving him an Irish living. He therefore sent him to Ireland with a note to the bishop of Cork: "Dear Cork, ordain Ponsobly. Yours, York." And very shortly the prince received the following note from the bishop: "Dear York, Ponsobly's ordained. Yours, Cork."—New York Commercial Advertiser.

The Latest in Bicycle Lamps.

A unique bicycle lamp just out has a horseshoe magnet pivoted to a clamp on the wheel, the weight of the lamp resting on a revolving wheel on the front rim, which generates electricity for the light by turning a pair of small wire coils rapidly.

Mild September.

Ah, the songs of long ago!
How their rhythms sweetly flow.
Back to other days recalls us
Let us hear that soft refrain
Which so fondly we remember
Set it ringing once again—
It was in the mild September.

Pause a moment though the facts oppose
Boldly lift your voice and cry, since
None can take the truth from those
Who secure poetic license
Though each brick out in the street
Seems to be a glowing ember,
Though men perch with the heat,
Warble on of "mild September."
—Washington Star.

A STRANGE MIX UP.

How the Theft of a Bicycle Led to the Barracking Complications.

Among the strange complications for which the bicycle has been responsible the following is rather a masterpiece in point of intricacy. Those persons who took part in it are now disposed to view the matter with some pride as a triumph of logic and misunderstanding.

It was a few days ago, had occasion to visit a bicycle store on the Boulevard a few days ago. He left his wheel outside, near the rack in which stood several machines for rent. While he was attending to his errand inside the shop he chanced to glance out through the door just in time to see a man spring upon his unguarded wheel and ride off at a furious pace down the street. With an exclamation of rage he rushed to the sidewalk, seized one of the wheels from the rack and started off in hot pursuit of the thief.

The proprietor of the shop stood for a moment aghast. He had not seen the beginning of the trouble, and the only thing clear to him was that his supposedly honest customer had made an astonishingly bold attempt to steal a wheel from the rack. There was only one thing to be done. Jumping upon another wheel, he joined in the chase, and the three scoured up the Boulevard in admirable racing style. The real thief proved the poorest rider of the three, and the result of this state of affairs was that the distance between the different members of the trio grew steadily less. As they drew together a truck crossed the avenue, crowding them into a small space. The rate at which they were going precluded any dismounting, and the three came into collision with a resounding crash. Before they had fairly extricated themselves a policeman appeared. His first proposition was to "run them all in" for scolding, but, impressed by the unusual excitement of his prisoners, who seemed to be more disturbed in mind than ordinary scorchers, he waited to hear their stories.

This, as may be imagined, was no short task. The genuine thief was the only one who saw humor in the situation. Knowing that he had nothing to say for himself, he stood by and grinned, while the shopkeeper and his customer spluttered out angry and conflicting accounts of the affair. But the truth was finally ascertained. As he colored the guilty man and dismissed the other two the policeman announced that no charge of anything would be pressed against anybody.

"If I have two or three more cases like this to settle," he remarked to a bystander, "it's a lawyer I'll be calling myself instead of an officer."—New York Tribune.

THEY LIKE THE COUNTRY.

When Retired, Naval Officers Seldom Live in Large Towns or Cities.

"Naval officers always settle in the country when they can," remarked a prominent officer to a Star reporter. "During their active careers—that is, during the time they are at sea, they are necessarily cramped for room, and while some of them on the large modern ships have elegant and sumptuous quarters, there is necessarily a limit to it. This thing grows on a man to such an extent that the first thing he does when he is retired, and in hundreds of cases long before retirement, is to hunt up a farm and locate on it. Three of the admirals on the retired list, headed by Admiral Ammen, are the owners of farms in the immediate locality of Washington, and any number of other officers are similarly provided for, though their farms are not so extensive. They seem to want stretching room, and it will be noticed that when they do locate they secure big places. Their minds run into stock and chicken raising. The officers of the marine corps have been noted for years as the owners of the speediest horses owned or driven about Washington, and they have been always prominent in connection with our racing associations and organizations. Naval officers have been similarly prominent. It is different with army officers. Their ambition seems to be for nice houses in the cities. The naval officers' ideas all run toward the country. I don't like to give names, but I could give dozens of illustrations to prove what I say, if it were necessary. Take a look at the incoming cars from any of the suburban places around Washington any morning, and there will be sufficient proof of what I say."—Washington Star.

A Thing to Boast Of.

Schoolfellows learn each others' failings if nothing else and recall after years of separation the characteristic thing about an old seatmate. Two men who had been at school together when they were boys met and talked of old times. "By the way," said one, "I saw Smith when I was out at Seaside." "Did you? And what was he bragging about when you saw him?" "He was bragging about his modesty just at that moment." "Dear old Smith—just like him."—Youth's Companion.

A Strong Hint.

The late Professor Jowett had a curious way of commenting on the work that was brought to him by students. On one occasion he was shown a set of Greek verses. After looking them over carefully he glanced up rather blankly and said to the author, "Have you any taste for mathematics?" If the armies of Europe should march at an eight mile gait, five abreast, 10 inches apart, it would require 9½ days for them to pass a given point. In Brussels the height of house fronts in public streets is determined by the width of the street. The maximum height is 60 feet.

A Crab That Acts as a Doorkeeper.

In the West Indies the natives train a rare species of crab to act as a servant. This animal is about the size of a football. One of its claws is nearly as big as the rest of the body. The crab has a fashion of raising this limb in such a way as to give the impression that it beckons or threatens.

In appearance it is a very formidable brute, possessing enormous eyes and the hugest of feelers. It takes up its position at the front door of the house and acts in every way as a watchdog and every bit as faithfully. It is possessed of wonderful strength, speed and stamina, easily overtaking an enemy not possessed of sprinting powers.

Its instinct is very acute, and it is rarely at fault in spotting a "wrong 'un" who approaches the house with any evil intention. Woe to the intruder if he gets into the clutches of the merciless doorkeeper. It will require a sledge hammer to extricate him from the embrace.

This crab is of a very affectionate disposition toward members of the household and plays with children with the gentleness of an English retriever. It is highly prized by natives on account of its usefulness as a house defender and is very costly to buy.

It has one peculiar rooted objection, and that is to dining in company. All endeavors short of starvation seem to be useless to induce this domestic curiosity to dine with the household, as, for instance, a dog does. It shuns company when feeding and when given its food ambles off to the darkest nook to consume it, returning to the door to renew its vigilance.—Strand Magazine.

A Chapter of Russian History.

Here is a little bit of Russian history that is not told in the school books and is not generally known. When Catherine II met her husband, Peter III, for the first time, his ugliness caused her to faint. It was only her ambition to become czarina that enabled her to go through with the wedding ceremony. The terrible consequences were inevitable. Catherine forced Peter to abdicate in her favor, after which she murdered him. But before these events had taken place Catherine had taken up with Count Soltykoff, who was doubtless the father of Catherine's son Paul, who succeeded to the throne, only to be assassinated a few years later.

For the Window.

Very beautiful transparencies for hanging in windows, etc., may be made from the ordinary gelatin plate. Use a slow plate, as it gives greater contrast. Place the negative from which you wish to make the positive film side up in a printing frame which does not have very stiff springs. Lay the gelatin plate film side down on the negative, put in the back press board and press the springs into place very gently, then hold it about two feet from the lamp and expose for from 5 to 20 seconds, according to the density of the negative. Develop and fix as for an ordinary negative.—Harper's Round Table.

UNDER THE NEW SYSTEM.

Working of the Modern Method Planned
by Mrs. Charlotte Smith.

The reforms planned by the Woman's Rescue league under the able guidance of Mrs. Charlotte Smith had finally been put in effect. The new civil service had been tried and found to work splendidly. Under it no man could even be nominated for office without first undergoing an examination as to his matrimonial qualifications and nothing short of an endorsement by some matrimonial league or a letter of recommendation from his wife could start him on the road to political preferment.

Thus it happened that when the Matrimonial Civil Service league of the commonwealth of Massachusetts met to pass upon the qualifications of various men who desired to be certified to the conventions to be held later as fit men for nominations there was considerable rivalry. Every woman in the hall was anxious to advance the interests of some man whom she thought better fitted for office because of his association with her than could possibly be the case with any other man.

Consequently the first man mentioned for a certificate was bitterly assailed.

"The idea of even considering him!" exclaimed one. "Why, although he is nearly 40 years old he has only had two wives and is now a widower in spite of the fact that his last wife died nearly a week ago! Is that the kind of a man that we should honor—a man who holds his obligations to the sex so lightly that he will let a whole week pass without taking some good woman to his arms and asking the privilege of supporting her? Never, Madam Chairman, never, I say! Let us have a higher ideal than that! Let us rather certify Mr. Jones to the convention!"

"A pretty choice!" broke in another woman sarcastically. "Why, that man never married the first time until he was 25 years old, and wouldn't have done it then if the Rescue league vigilance committee hadn't got after him. Let it never be said that we encouraged such a dilatory policy as that. Far better that we should certify Mr. Brown to!"

There was a chorus of laughs to this. "Brown!" cried half a dozen in unison. "Why, it took a breach of promise suit to get him married at all, and it is known that he had previously let two opportunities to marry slip away from him."

"What we want," put in the chairman as soon as order was restored, "is half a dozen men who have married early and often!"

"Hear, hear!" "What an honor it would be if we could recommend some one who was married at—say, 19 or 14 years of age, some one who realized the responsibilities of life at an early age and accepted them with true manly fortitude!"

"Hear, hear!" "What a pleasure it would be to vote for a man who, owing to the vicissitudes and uncertainties of this life, had found it possible to make five or six women happy and save them from the fate of the unmarried woman breadwinner!"

"Hurrah! That's the kind!" "Three cheers for Mrs. Charlotte Smith!"

And thus these noble women went merrily on with their work until they got themselves so confused that they finally determined to certify to the convention every man who could produce a wife or such evidence as would show conclusively that he had been a widower not to exceed three days.—Chicago Post.

SWITCH WAS OPEN.

A Fearful Accident Avoided by a Very Narrow Margin.

It was only by the merest chance that there was not a terrible accident on the Cincinnati, Lebanon and Northern railroad near Rossomoyne the other afternoon. Passenger train No. 7, from Lebanon to Cincinnati, was booming along at a speed of about 15 miles an hour. There was something of an up grade, and but for this the result might have been more serious.

Some person, either out of malice or curiosity, had tampered with the switch of the side track at Rossomoyne, leaving the switch partly open. The engine, No. 2, manned by Yost, engineer, and Baker, fireman, ran into the switch, and the locomotive careened on its side. Yost reversed his engine, and, along with his fireman, jumped off. Baker sustained a scalp wound, but Yost was not hurt at all.

Fortunately the remainder of the train, baggage car and coach, was checked up, but the engine was considerably battered. None of the passengers were hurt, although some of them had quite a shaking up. The train was delayed for nearly three hours, but was finally brought to Cincinnati with another engine.—Cincinnati Enquirer.

A wholesale paper dealer in New York City relates that his first experience with Ripans Tabules began 18 months ago. Prior to that he could not recall a time when he was not troubled with constipation. Nothing gave more than temporary relief; but, since taking nobody has had more perfect digestive organs than he. The bowels perform their functions with regularity; there is no distress after eating, no headache, no heartburn, no dizziness—nothing of a dyspeptic nature. The same gentleman also relates that "if he occasionally stays a little too late at the club and meets convivial companions, a Tabule taken before going to bed wards off every unpleasant after effect."

RECEPTION TO PRES. LONG

To be Given To-morrow Evening at Presbyterian Church.

Complete Programme of the Exercises to be Rendered at That Event.

The public reception to be given to-morrow evening at Market Street Presbyterian Church in honor of president S. P. Long, of Lima College, promises to be one of the most interesting events of the season. The committee having the affair in charge have provided a very interesting programme for the evening, and the capacious building will no doubt be well filled with the many well-wishers of president Long, and the college of which he is the head. Every friend of Lima College seems to be manifesting a commendable interest in the matter, and the college has a multitude of friends, including many of the most prominent citizens of Lima. It speaks well for Lima that this is the case, for the institution is one of which any city might well be proud, and the opportunity which this meeting will give to the general public for making the acquaintance of the new president will be very highly appreciated. The entertainment will be of the highest order. Short addresses will be made by several leading citizens, a lecture will be delivered by president Long, and the Choral Society will officiate in several numbers. Judge J. E. Nichols will be president of the evening, and the following programme will be rendered:

Invocation..... Dr. R. J. Thomson
Address of Welcome..... Hon. S. A. Barber
Music..... "Lift Up Your Heads," from Handel's "Messiah"..... Choral Society
Lecture..... "The Messiah," from Handel's "Messiah"..... Rev. S. P. Long
Music..... "And the Glory of the Lord," from Handel's "Messiah"..... Choral Society

Women and Men's Clothes.

Ouida believes that, instead of going into society, women would be better employed in applying their minds to "dressing themselves, their children and their men." She says in The Cosmopolitan:

"I do not think men would long resist a feminine effort on the part of women to introduce some better male costume than that which at present makes the streets and the drawing rooms alike hideous—that is, if the effort were general, sustained and persuasive. The trouser is the culminating point in modern male attire of ugliness, indecency, unsuitability and antihygienic stupidity. The chimney pot is the more ludicrous, but I think the trouser is the more odious portion of masculine clothing. It would make a guy of Apollo's self."

It would be interesting to know what most men would say to the proposition that their wives design the clothes they should wear. Imagine the predicament of an aesthetic wife with a taste for mauve spike tails and a refractory husband with a horror of attracting notice. The number of complications is too horrifying to contemplate. Ouida is quite right about the trouser, but a mind built to dwell upon flounces and toques—would it be entirely safe to trust such a mind with the grim problem of the trouser, the baggy vest, the stern silk hat?

It is doubtful. Best leave man's garments to the tailors—and to the bicycle, which is already doing a great work in exterminating the hated trouser.—Philadelphia Times.

Railway Vibration.

Annoyance and temporary discomfort are small items in the schedule of ills chargeable to vibration and noise on railways and the unceasing and terrific racket of many of our cities. The noise of the elevated railways has caused convulsions in children and what is equivalent to nightmare in adults. One lady of somewhat delicate organization has frequently sprung from her bed on the approach of a train and found herself standing upright in the middle of the floor when she awakened. It seemed that the engineer on this train had a sweetheart living in that neighborhood, and he managed so that the locomotive made a series of peculiar noises whenever he approached the dwelling of his innamorata. This was the only train that so affected the sufferer, and she was obliged to leave the neighborhood on account of it. In ordinary railway travel speed is the most important item to be looked after, and the noise attending the great rapidity with which the train moves is really a secondary consideration. Medical scientists who are giving attention to this subject are beginning to demand for their patients, especially those who find it necessary to take long journeys for their health, accommodations in which due regard is had for quiet and freedom from that vibration which affects the nervous system. Special routes are mapped out and certain lines are avoided because of the irritation by the clatter and swinging of the trains.—New York Ledger.

Watches are adjusted to heat and cold by being allowed to stand first in a room heated with dry heat to 120 degrees and then in cold storage, being regulated after each treatment.

The ushers of Brooklyn theaters now shout "Hats off!" before the performance begins. The effect is reported as instantaneous, and in consequence the audiences are happy.

The tallest captain in the British army is Captain Oswald Ames. He is captain in the Second Life guards and stands well over 8 feet 6 inches in height.

HOLDS ITS GROUND.

This is the Testimony From Everywhere as well as Lima.

Can this be so? Is it true? Are the facts garbled? Is the truth distorted? These are questions which every man and woman in Lima suffering the tortures of backache say as they read the published accounts in the newspapers about medicines which claim to cure it. Whatever the conclusion arrived at is touching these claims, he can't hedge or flinch from or disprove the following, for it took place in Lima and the experiences are those of a representative citizen. Mr. F. K. Bushey, the well known hack owner, says: "I had both with my back off and on for about two years. I would begin without any notice and I could hardly move out of a chair after having been sitting for some time, and my back would pain me with a dull aching that took all the energy and ambition from me. I read about Doan's Kidney Pills and I thought I would try them, and I procured a box at W. M. Melville's drug store, No. 147 N. Main St. I must say that they did the business right away. I took but part of the box but the lameness in the small of my back left me no remains of that lingering pain in my kidneys. I consider them a thorough cure for backache and I can conscientiously recommend them. Doan's Kidney Pills are all right."

The Basques.

The Basques, or Euzkaldunak, as they call themselves, on account of the primitive character of their institutions, but more particularly because of the archaic features of their language, have long attracted the attention of ethnologists. Few writers on European travel have been able to keep their hands off this interesting people. Owing to the difficulty of obtaining information from the original Basque sources a wide range of speculation has been offered for conjecture. Interest for a long time mainly centered in the language; the physical characteristics were largely neglected. The last ten years have, however, witnessed a remarkable change in this respect. A series of brilliant investigations has been offered to science, based almost entirely upon the study of the living population. As a consequence this people has within a decade emerged from the hazy domain of romance into the clear light of scientific knowledge. Much yet remains to be accomplished, but enough is definitely known to warrant many conclusions both as to their physical origin and ethnic affinities.—"The Racial Geography of Europe" in Popular Science Monthly.

Five Emeralds.

Cortes obtained in Mexico five emeralds of wonderful size and beauty. One was like a rose, another in the shape of a horn, a third in that of a fish, with diamond eyes, a fourth like a bell, with a pearl for a clapper; the fifth was a cup, with a foot of gold and with four little chains, each ended with a large pearl. He had also two emerald vases, worth 300,000 crowns each.

He Knew Him.

Several travelers were waiting for a train on the veranda of a southwest Georgia hotel. It was a dismal, rainy day, and one of them remarked:

"This reminds me of one of Longfellow's poems, 'The Day Is Done.'"

At the mention of the name Longfellow a tall stranger leaned forward and said:

"Longfellow? What do you know 'bout him?"

"Little," replied the first speaker, "except that he wrote books."

"An is he a-writin' of books?" asked the tall man. "Why, the last time I heard of him he was rumm' for sheriff an' makin' of stump speeches."

"I fear you are mistaken in the man," said the first speaker, laughing.

"Not me," replied the tall man. "Don't I know him? Bill Longfellow—had a squint in one eye an' cut over the other. An' jester think—the durned fool's took ter writin'."—Atlanta Constitution.

A LAND SWINDLER.

Whispering of a land swindle, to that which has been worked in some western states, is being operated by some parties outside of the state. In West Virginia there are enormous tracts of undeveloped timber and coal land lying in the interior and this fact has caused the swindlers to turn their attention to them as a profitable field in which to work their scheme.

A dispatch from McDowell county, lying in the extreme southernmost portion of the state, says that inside the last two months deeds have been admitted to record there purporting to convey several thousand acres of valuable coal land for considerations aggregating several hundred thousand dollars, which are believed to be purely fraudulent. There are now over 2,000,000 acres on the land books, while the county only contains about 600,000 all told.

The scheme of fraud is simple enough and has been worked by the same parties for some time. The swindlers prepare a deed for a large tract of coal land in the county, and have it acknowledged before some fictitious notary public in a faraway state.

They send it to McDowell county, the dispatch states, to be recorded, and have the clerk of the county court to forward them certified copies of the deed from the record. This places them in a position to dispose of the pretended titles for a good price to unsuspecting parties.

It is not unusual for a stranger to turn up at Welch, which is the county seat of McDowell county, with a deed for several thousand acres of land, which is all straight on the record, but when he comes to look for the land he can not find it.

Fleet Coasting Steamships.

Philadelphia, Oct. 11.—Within a few days a contract will be awarded to Delaware river shipbuilders for the construction of two and possibly four of the fleetest coasting steamships flying the American flag. The ships will be built for the United States mail contract between New York, Havana (Cuba) and Tampam (Mexico), and an expenditure of $1,200,000 will be involved. These new craft are to be built under special inspection so as to comply with the regulations of the United States government as laid down for auxiliary cruisers.

Carved His Victim.

Richmond, Ky., Oct. 11.—Rutherford Todd, youngest son of Frank Todd, a wealthy farmer, stabbed Dan Little, a farmer living on his father's place, inflicting wounds that will prove fatal. The men had had trouble over a division of crops. Little attacked Todd with a rock. Todd, who was on horseback, leaped from his saddle and, drawing a pocketknife, began stabbing Little, who fell. Todd continued to carve his helpless victim, leaving him for dead.

Wire Nail Trust.

Cleveland, Oct. 11.—It is rumored among iron and steel men here that John W. Gates will soon resign the presidency of the "Inoils Steel company, to become the head of the Consolidated Steel and Wire company, with plants in various cities. Mr. Gates is also credited with being the leader of the movement to bring about a combination of the wire manufacturers for mutual protection.

Will Visit Missouri.

Selalia, Mo., Oct. 11.—Colonel Henry D. Shelton of Hughesville, Pettis county, is in receipt of a letter from President McKinley, in which he consents to visit Pettis county some time next month, the exact date to be fixed later. Colonel Shelton is at the head of the sugar making industry, which is to be formally inaugurated in central Missouri on the occasion of the president's visit.

She Wanted to Die.

New York, Oct. 11.—Florence Helm, a young and handsome woman who is said to be a daughter of former Governor John L. Helm of Kentucky, is dying at Roosevelt hospital from the effects of morphine taken with suicidal intent. At the age of 15 she married Joseph Marshall, who died a year later. She had lived in New York 10 years and resumed her maiden name when she came here.

Sale of Kansas Pacific.

Kansas City, Oct. 11.—The sale of the Kansas Pacific railroad, under foreclosure, will take place at Topeka November 5. The entire property, with lands, equipments, telegraph lines, etc., is to be sold in one parcel. The upset price is placed at $4,500,000. A deposit of $200,000 is required to be placed in the hands of the master in chancery five days before the sale.

Champion Fly Caster.

San Francisco, Oct. 11.—At the annual tournament of the San Francisco Fly Casting club, Walter D. Mansfield the champion long distance caster, who broke all existing records at Chicago a few months ago by a cast of 111½ feet, again broke the world's record held by himself, increasing his cast by 1½ feet. His score of 113 feet now stands unrivalled.

In Good Condition.

Vallejo, Cal., Oct. 11.—The monitor Monterey, which went into dry dock Monday last, will be released early this week. Her officers say that she is in excellent condition.

The Weather.

For West Virginia—Fair; probably local showers; southeasterly winds.
For Ohio—Increasing clouds, probably light local showers; fresh southeasterly winds; warmer in northern portion.
For Indiana—Cloudy, with light local showers; southerly winds.

TO CURE NERVOUS DYSPESIA

To Gain Flesh, To Sleep Well, to Know What Appetite and Good Digestion Mean, Make a Test of Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets—in Interesting Experience of an Indianapolis Gentleman.

No trouble is more common or more misunderstood than nervous dyspepsia. People having it think that their nerves are to blame and are surprised that they are not cured by nerve medicine and spring remedies; the real seat of the mischief is not sight of the stomach is the organ to be looked after.

Nervous dyspepsia often do not have any pain whatever in the stomach, nor perhaps any of the usual symptoms of stomach weakness. Nervous dyspepsia shows itself not in the stomach so much as in nearly every other organ; in some cases the heart palpitates and is irregular; in others the kidneys are affected; in others the bowels are constipated, with headaches; still others are troubled with loss of flesh and appetite, with accumulation of gas, sour risings and heartburn.

Mr. A. W. Sharper, of No. 61 Prospect St., Indianapolis, Ind., writes as follows: "A motive of pure gratitude prompts me to write these few lines regarding the new and valuable medicine, Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets. I have been a sufferer from nervous dyspepsia for the last four years; have used various patent medicines and other remedies without any favorable result. They sometimes gave temporary relief until the effects of the medicine wore off. I attributed this to my sedentary habits, being a book-keeper with little physical exercise, but I am glad to state that the tablets have overcome all these obstacles, for I have gained in flesh, sleep better and am better in every way. The above is written not for notoriety, but is based on actual fact."

Respectfully yours,

A. W. SHARPER,

61 Prospect St., Indianapolis, Ind.

It is safe to say that Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets will cure any stomach weakness or disease except cancer of stomach. They cure sour stomach, gas, loss of flesh and appetite, sleeplessness, palpitation, heartburn, constipation and headache.

A Rare Kentucky Treat.

Three men walked into a drugstore the other day and one ordered drinks. He and one of the others asked for soda water and then the clerk turned to the third.

"What will you have, sir?"

The man looked at the one who was treating and said:

"You know I don't like soda, John."

Then, turning to the clerk, he said:

"Give me five postal cards.—Louisville Post."

LOVE ERE TOO LATE.

From the German of Ferdinand Freiligrath.

"O Lieb so lang du lieben kannst."

Oh, love as long as love you can.

And love as long as love you may.

The hour will come, the hour will come,

When you shall mourn o'er lifeless clay!

Take care to keep your heart afloat

And love as long as love you may.

As long as you can find a heart

That answers to affection told.

And when one loves his soul to you

Do what you can to make him glad.

That all his days may be of peace

And not an hour of his be sad.

And guard your tongue and temper well.

An angry word is quickly spoken.

God knows it was not meant to wound,

And yet the other's heart is broken.

These workmen who were promised employment when McKinley was elected President, who are standing around on the street corners waiting for the prosperity era to arrive, will be interested in knowing that Hobart, the millionaire whom they sent to Washington as a running mate with McKinley, has just purchased three of the most expensive and elegant equipages ever made in America. While the dupes of Hanna are looking for work and suffering for bread, the persons who deceived them are rolling in luxurious carriages over the streets of the capital.

FATALITY INJURED.

Thomas McGraw, a Detroit Capitalist,

Detroit, Oct. 11.—The Detroit Capitalist, Thomas McGraw, was struck by a Woodward Avenue electric car near his residence, sustaining injuries from which he cannot recover.

Mr. McGraw had just alighted from an up car and was crossing the track toward his home, when the car struck him, knocking him down and crushing his skull. He is 73 years old.

Rushes to Hospital.

St. Louis, Oct. 11.—Patrolman Goetz arrested two men who had packages of tobacco under their arms and ran at the sight of the officer. The officer caught one on the railroad track and a light flashed, raising such a cloud of dust that they did not see an engine backing down on them. The engine knocked them both down, causing the officer's revolver to be discharged. The bullet made a terrible wound in the robber's spine and he was taken to the hospital in a dying condition.

Russian Agent Arrives.

New York, Oct. 11.—M. Pierre Bokine, the agent of the Russian government in the seal conference, which will soon be held in Washington, is in New York on his way from Europe to the national capital. "Russia is as anxious to preserve the fur seal as the United States," said Mr. Bokine. "The sealing islands along the Russian coast are jealously guarded, and I believe the conference will be productive of great benefit to all the countries interested."

Temperance Reformer Imprisoned.

Salem, Mass., Oct. 11.—Henry M. Faxon, the well known temperance reformer, was summoned in the superior court here to explain why certain temperance literature was sent by Mr. Faxon to jurymen who were recently engaged in hearing liquor cases in Lawrence. The trial of the case lasted only a few moments and it ended in Mr. Faxon being discharged with a reprimand.

Russian Admiral Going Home.

San Francisco, Oct. 11.—Admiral Alexeff of the Russian navy arrived on the China from the orient en route to St. Petersburg. For over two years he had been in command of the Russian squadron in Chinese, Japanese and eastern Asiatic waters, the cruiser Rurik being his flagship. He has been relieved of his command and is going home to await orders.

Pay Not Reduced.

Seattle, Wash., Oct. 11.—A telegram has been received here from the United States treasury department stating that Secretary Geary has rescinded the order reducing the pay of seamen on the revenue cutters from $28 to $25 per month. It is now expected that the sailors on the cutters Grant and Perry, who quit the service here, will re-enlist.

Business Opened Up.

Marshall, Tex., Oct. 11.—State Health Officer Swearingen has wired Mayor Field consenting to the opening of business between Marshall and Boyce, La., and the hauling of fumigated empty freight cars from Westwego, La., to this place. Lumber will be carried from stations this side of Boyce.

Serious Conflict Occurs.

Rio de Janeiro, Oct. 11.—There was a serious conflict on Sept. 22 in Calceene, Dutch Guiana, between British Nederland troops and the inhabitants of the town. Reports received are to the effect that a party of British invaded Calceene and set fire to 40 houses in the town.

Soft Coal Famine.

Milwaukee, Oct. 11.—Milwaukee is threatened with a soft coal famine. In order to meet present contracts local dealers are borrowing from each other with promises of returning the coal when their individual supplies come in. They are 500,000 tons short for the year just ended.

Consuls Appointed.

Washington, Oct. 11.—The President made the following appointments: John C. Ingersoll of Illinois, at Copenhagen, Denmark; Joseph T. Hoke of West Virginia, at Windsor, Nova Scotia; W. Irvin Shaw of Pennsylvania, at Barranquilla, Colombia.

Will Uncle Sam Suffer?

Buenos Ayres, Oct. 11.—The finance committee of the chamber of deputies has approved a bill providing for a retaliatory tariff on American imports, as recommended by the president in his last message to congress.

Naval Bill Passed.

Berlin, Oct. 11.—The bundsrath adopted the naval bill introduced by the navy, providing for an expenditure of 410,000,000 marks to extend over a period of seven years.

They Will Participate.

Hamburg, Oct. 11.—The Social Democratic congress, by a vote of 160 to 50, abrogated the prohibition against participation in elections for members of the diet.

Must Be Quite Ill.

Caracas, Venezuela, Oct. 11.—Owing to his illness President Crespo has been removed to Maento by the advice of his physicians.

African Sent Home.

Colon, Colombia, Oct. 11.—The Panama Canal company has paid off and shipped back home every African laborer.

An English gardener writes in The Golden Penny that trees can be poisoned as easily as animals, all that is necessary being the injection of a few cents' worth of arsenic in a hole bored into the tree.

Evening Dress in a Street Car.

He swung aboard a Walnut Hills night car at Fifth street and was evidently angry at having had a long wait, for he complained in audible tones about tired men having to stand on street corners. When he stepped inside and saw every seat taken, a disappointed look came over his face, and he grabbed for a strap with a deep growl. Luck was coming his way, however, for at Eighth street a man near the door got out, and the tired man sunk into his place with a sigh of relief. The car then proceeded to the opposite side of the street and stopped to take on a man and a woman. The passengers looked up curiously at seeing a couple in full dress climb aboard. A pale blue silk dress, low cut, and with short sleeves, adorned the woman, and her escort was got up in immaculate dress togs. The man was very gallant and looked about for a seat for the woman, even trying to get some ladies to sit closer and make room. When this failed, he approached the tired man who had got on at Fifth street and asked him if he would have any objection to giving up his seat. The other looked up in amazement and said in a decided way that he did object. The man then said:

"I think it is very mean in you to allow a lady to stand in a car."

"Quick as a flash the tired man burst out:

"I think it is mean in you to make her ride in a street car in that dress."

Roars of laughter from the passengers followed. The couple alighted at the next street, and the tired man once more sank into repose.—Cincinnati Enquirer.

Cured by Sight of His Graveclothes.

The influence of mind over body is well illustrated in this story from a northern Penobscot town, and which is said to be vouched for on good authority:

A man well along in years became ill, and the physician told the members of the family that there was no possible chance for his recovery. They were advised to prepare for the worst, and finally death was regarded as a matter of a very few hours. A well disposed attendant made all preparations to prepare the body for burial as soon as life surrendered its hold, and in order to have the clothes ready for immediate use they were brought into the sick-room. The sick man opened his eyes, and his glance rested on the clothes. He recognized them instantly, and the import of the proceedings flashed through his feeble mind. What little energy was left in his system was massed then and there to utter an emphatic expression that wouldn't look well in print. Perhaps the attendant wasn't surprised. Some say she came near having a fit, but that doesn't matter.

From the moment that the sick man discovered his graveclothes resting on the back of a chair there was a decided improvement in his condition, and he has since enjoyed many years of robust health.—Kennebec Journal.

Should Have Spoken Sooner.

He—Miss Quickstep, they say you tabulate your admirers as "preferred," "eligible," "tolerable," "so-so," "emergency," "intolerable," "not to be thought of," and the like. Where do I come in?

She—I—I'm afraid, Mr. Rinkley, you are a little too late to classify.—Chicago Tribune.

FOR TEN THOUSAND

Van B. Winters Will Sue the Baltimore Railroad

Conductor Refused to Honor His Mileage Book and Ejected Him from the Train

Van B. Winters, of this city, traveling representative for a Cincinnati wholesale house, has instructed attorneys Motter & Mackenzie to institute a suit for $10,000 against the Baltimore & Ohio road. On the 18th of last June Mr. Winters bought a Cincinnati, Jackson & Mackinaw mileage book, good over the Baltimore & Ohio. On the 24th of last month a conductor on the latter road refused to honor the book and demanded fare, which Mr. Winters declined to advance, and he was ejected from the train.

The suit will be filed by Motter & Mackenzie in United States court, the B. & O. railroad being at this time in the hands of a receiver.

This Week's Attractions at the Opera House.

Tuesday—The Bentz-Santley Novelty and Burlesque Co.
Thursday—Tim Murphy.

Tuesday evening the Bentz-Santley company, made famous by 27 years of continuous appearances before the public, will shed the rags of beautiful stage effects and magnificent burlesques interpreted by a carefully selected company of thirty people. It is said that the two burlesques, "A World of Pleasure" and "Paradise in Hades," are absolutely up to date and replete with superb ballets and every stage environment necessary for success.

The announcement of Tim Murphy and his celebrated comedy organizations that includes vivacious, beautiful and magnetic Dorothy Sherrod, which are advertised to present the comedy, "Old Innocence," and the dramatic novelty, "Sir Henry Hypnotized," at the opera house, is sure to arouse enthusiasm of all admirers of American satire, as without doubt the double bill comprises two of the most emphatic dramatic successes produced in Lima last season.

SIDE ROD BROKE

While the Engine Was Bringing a Passenger Train

DOWN THE FINDLAY HILL

Collision in the P., Ft. W. & C. Yards Today—The C. H. & D. Motor Car—Other Railroad News of Local and General Interest.

Saturday evening as west bound passenger train No. 5, due here at 4:40 o'clock, was descending Findlay hill, a steep grade east of Findlay, a side rod on engine 24, which was pulling the train, broke and for a few minutes engineer McMonies and fireman Casey, of this city, who were in charge of the engine, expected to see their cab chopped off or the train ditched, but by the cool head and careful management of engineer McMonies, the train was gradually brought to a standstill and very little damage was done, for instead of reversing his engine, which was running at a rate of forty-five miles an hour when the rod broke, he applied the air, gradually slowed down and finally stopped.

COLLIDED IN THE YARDS.

About 11:30 o'clock to-day engine 66 on east bound train 80, of the P., Ft. W. & C., in charge of engineer Sam Keiker, collided with a cut of cars that a switch engine was shoving out from the P., Ft. W. & C. house track. One car was derailed and considerably damaged and the pilot was torn off the engine.

THE C. H. & D. MOTOR.

The C. H. & D.'s new motor car, says the Enquirer, has been set up, and is now going through what is called a limbering up process. Next Wednesday or Thursday the officials of the road expect to have the car run over the main line, so that friends and patrons at Hamilton, Dayton, Piqua, Troy and other points can inspect it. Stops of 15 or 20 minutes will be made at the important stations, so that there will be time for an inspection of the interior of the car.

The long run test to be made next week will be a matter of interest to stockholders, officials and employees of the railroads. The construction and operation of the interurban electric lines has in many instances necessitated the taking off of suburban trains by the railroads, because of lack of patronage. This, of course, throws out of employment a certain number of engineers and trainmen.

The efforts of the C. H. & D. people to accommodate their service to the needs of their patrons, not only by the operation of fast passenger trains, but by the introduction of these new motor cars to take care of the short haul passengers means, if successful, that the steam railroads can protect themselves and make it unprofitable for the trolley lines to invade their field.

The new C. H. & D. steam motor car is the first of the kind ever built in the United States, and the result of the test of its capacity and practical usefulness will be awaited with interest by railroad officials.

THE COLUMBUS & NORTHWESTERN

A dispatch from Bellefontaine says The surveyors for the Columbus & Northwestern railroad reached this city yesterday afternoon with what is supposed to be the final line for the road.

It parallels the track of the Sandusky division of the Big Four from the corporation line on the northwest to the south side of the city and then goes southeast around the hills toward Columbus.

NOTES.

Fireman Ward, of the C. H. & D. laying off on account of sickness.

Engine 265 was run out of the C. H. & D. shops this morning after receiving complete repairs.

The Lima Northern has a large force of colored men engaged at Detroit in grading a line into that city. The new grade will be six miles long when completed.

Attorney general McKenna has issued an official statement announcing that the government had decided not to appeal the Union Pacific foreclosure suit, but to allow the road to be sold November 1, in consideration of the Union Pacific reorganization committee raising its guaranteed bid from $45,745,050 to $50,000,000. The road, he added, is to be sold to the highest bidder but with a minimum bid guaranteed as stated.

ABOVE THE NORMAL

Was the Way the Ada Eleven Found Ashton's Team.

SCARCELY GOOD PRACTICE

Was the Game Last Saturday for the Lima Boys—The Visitors Fail to Score a Single Point—The Score Was Ten to Nothing.

The Lima Foot Ball Club opened its season last Saturday afternoon, added one more victory to their excellent record and caused the Ada boys to go back to their normal school without glory. They came into the city Saturday morning with their colors flying, but in the evening their pride had fallen and with reluctance they folded their yellow and black ribbons, concealed them in their inner vest pockets and stole away from the city after night that they might not be observed by their fellow normal pupils. It was very sad that they met with such disappointment, but it could not be otherwise. Captain Ashton had considerable for their feasting and his sympathy led him to let the boys down as easily as possible.

The day was an ideal one. The field was in excellent condition and a very fair crowd was in attendance to cheer the Lima boys to victory.

When the two teams entered the field for preliminary practice some doubt entered the minds of those present as to the possibility of the Lima boys winning. The Ada boys were all large fellows and the home boys, in comparison, looked much smaller. But when the two teams came together at the first flag all doubt that existed in the minds of the home people was dispelled.

Captain Ashton's team was well trained. They were active and very quickly executed every play. Their team work was of the very best and no doubt it was this, more than anything else, that gave them a "walk over." Many of the Ada team played foot ball Saturday for the first time. They evidently had good exercise and a valuable lesson from what they saw. No doubt the team, between this and Thanksgiving, will improve, as they have decided to take "quizzing" on foot ball from one of their political professors.

A strong west wind blew across the field. The "foes" was made and Ada accepted choice of goals and decided to defend the last line.

Kent Hughes officiated as umpire the first half while some one from Ada occasionally was seen acting as referee. He was a small individual and very frequently could not be seen when surrounded by the very young boys. He had considerable difficulty in carrying a large walking stick, to which was tied a bolt of ribbon. He had a referee's whistle which he frequently blew whenever he became lost amidst the crowd of boys, and to many it was a mystery how such a small boy could blow so large a whistle as he had. He used his official power once and told a player that he was "off side," but the player heeded not the warning, for he did not realize that a "man" had spoken. It was agreed that the game should consist of twenty minute halves. The Lima club had several tricks which they worked very successfully, much to the surprise of their opponents. In the first half the Normal boys were nonplussed at the way the Lima boys would go through their line and around the ends. They shoved the "Ada hills" with ease. In the second half the visitors played better ball. They held the line more firmly and were not so timid in tackling a runner. They were learning rapidly and if during the remainder of the season they continue to learn as rapidly as they did in Saturday's game, they will present a formidable line here Thanksgiving day. They lacked in interference and team work. The Lima boys' interference deserves much praise, and it was by this assistance that the "navies" were able to pass the ends for big games. The game was replete with kicking, which certainly makes a game exceedingly interesting and exciting. George Faurot is an artist in lifting the ball with his foot and plays his position very well in full back.

It was exactly three minutes after the whistle was sounded at the beginning of the game until a touch down was made. The kick for goal failed. It was but a short time until the visitors with the ball were forcibly driven back of their line, scoring two more points for Lima. In the second half the ball was kept in the air a greater part of the time. It was placed there once too often for Faurot secured the pig skin and by a pretty run made another touch down but failed at goal. The crowd, which contained a large number of ladies, greatly enjoyed the game and were liberal with their cheering. The playing field should be roped in to keep the crowd from interfering with the players and to give the people on the outside an opportunity to see the playing.

C. H. Adkins will address the people of Harrod on the political issues on Saturday evening, Oct. 16th, at 7:30 o'clock.

TRoubles of Baldertwins

Harold Asked Eugene to Take His Place and There'll Be a Man.

When the Baldertwins had finished their supper the other night, Harold called Eugene into his room, and, closing the door, said:

"Mother wants to talk to me about something this evening, Gene, but I am engaged for a spin out to Lincoln park with another girl. Now, if you want to do me a good turn, you'll represent me on this occasion."

"Certainly, if the girl don't object," answered Eugene sweetly.

"None of your chaff. You know what I mean. Take my place with mother."

"Thanks, awfully! I like that kind of an engagement. While you are out on a tandem with your best girl I am to stay here and be roasted. Nice prospect for the wrong twin!"

I have taken many a roasting for you from the governor, Gene. Turn about is fair play."

"All right, Hal, but I wish it was the governor instead of the mother. She is so awfully particular and keeps a fellow forever. However, I'll stand by you this time. Only suppose she finds out!"

"She won't," said Harold, and he hurried off, leaving Eugene as his proxy.

Mrs. Balder sat waiting for Harold, and when the wrong twin entered her presence with a silent step and subdued air she said:

"I am glad, Harold, that you remembered my wish to speak to you this evening, as I have something particular to say, and I want you to be interested."

"Yes-m-m," mumbled Eugene, who almost lost his head at the start by trying to recall Harold's parental pose.

"I'd give something to know how he acts when he has a private and particular with the mother," he thought. "Does he hang his feet over the back of the chair kind of easy or sit up prim and proper?"

Then he cleared his throat and stared gravely at his mother.

"It is about your brother Eugene I wish to speak," she said, and the wrong twin shot into the air and sat down again.

"I do wish you would be more dignified," urged Mrs. Balder. "Now that you are engaged to be married you should cultivate more repose of manner. You act as if you were a brother."

"Well, I like that!" said Eugene, forgetting for a moment his role of Harold, but his mother continued.

"I have enough frivolity to contend with in his character, and it is of that I wish to speak tonight. Eugene is much too giddy for his age, and I want you to help me improve him."

"Oh, Gene is all right!" said the wrong twin.

"I would be glad if he took more interest in the society of girls," said Mrs. Balder.

"Is there a society of that name?" asked Eugene innocently.

"When you are married," resumed his mother, ignoring the question, "I shall hope for a great deal of assistance from your wife's influence. Nothing steadies a young man down like having good woman friends."

Here it occurred to the wrong twin to put in a good word for himself.

"Why is it necessary to steady Gene down?" he asked in Harold's best manner.

"Why, I am sure, son, you are always complaining of him," said Mrs. Balder, and Eugene announced to himself that he had it in for Harold. But he said in a conciliatory tone:

"Mere boyish pranks, mother. Eugene is a good fellow enough as boys go. I have yet to hear of his doing a dishonorable thing. How could he after such lessons as you have given! (I would like to wring Harold's neck!) I really think you can trust him to come out all right. (Some day he'll prove another Cain.) I will look after him myself and advise him if I see him going wrong."

"Spoken like my own Harold!" said the mother, with fervor. "I love you both, but I cannot close my eyes to Eugene's thoughtlessness, and I look to you to reform him."

Then she kissed the wrong twin for his brother and dismissed him, and Eugene fell over himself in getting out of the room, while he concocted dark schemes of vengeance against Harold, and as he revolved them in his mind he laughed and chuckled like a fiend. (Chicago Times-Herald.)

Arabian Horses in Battle.

Arabian horses manifest remarkable courage in battle. It is said that when a horse of this breed finds himself wounded and perceives that he will not be able to bear his rider much longer he quickly retires from the conflict, bearing his master to a place of safety while he has still sufficient strength. But if, on the other hand, the rider is wounded and falls to the ground the faithful animal remains beside him, unmindful of danger, neighing until assistance is brought.

The fat undertaker, who plants by the acre, poor victims of cough and cold, is fighting and crying.

For we've all stopped dying since Brazilian Balm was sold. And for those who desire Not just yet to go home It is worth its weight in gold.

Try Grain-O! Try Grain-O!

As your grocer to day shows you a package of GRAIN-O, the new food drink that takes the place of coffee. The children may drink it without injury as well as the adult. All who try it like it. GRAIN-O has that rich, smooth, brown of Mocha or Java, but it is made from pure grain, and the most delicate stomach receives it without distress. In the price of coffee, 15c and 25c per package sold by all grocers.

The Old Soldier.

The pleasantest of talkers is the old soldier. Always there is meat in his words, and almost always he is modest. Between him and the modern is the difference between the man who has seen and done and the man who has read about it. The scenes of the war were so tremendous and its cataclysm so frequent that time cannot dim their recollection of them. They are still as fresh in the minds of participants as are the things of yesterday. A veteran once told me that not a day passed over his head that he did not unwittingly recall a half dozen battles in which he had borne his part. This is that in any company of men who were mustered out in 1865 the talk invariably reverts to that period.

The old soldiers are dying with increasing frequency, as is the nature of things, but still there are enough left to make any gathering notable by their presence. Charles Lever says that so long as humanity exists men will do three things—make war, make love and gamble—and they can't be legislated out of them. Certainly, although we be all advocates of peace, we dearly love a warrior and we exalt his horn. We love him for the things he has done, we respect him for his bravery, we look with veneration upon his wooden leg, and we listen with pleasure to his repeated tales of suffering and daring.—Chicago Times-Herald.

Iron in the System.

Walker was one of those who do not believe in doctors, and he never lost an opportunity of having a dig at them. When he was brought home in a cab with a broken leg and the medical man had to be sent for, Walker was much humiliated.

"Rather serious," said the man of physic and fees, "but you'll go on if you take care. I'll send you an iron tonic."

"Don't want it!" exclaimed the patient shortly. "Iron is no good."

"Excuse me," returned the doctor stiffly, "iron is good for the system."

And as Walker doggedly repeated his objection he continued with some warmth: "It is beyond all question, sir, in whatever way iron enters the body it is good, and it is a mistaken notion to say that it makes a man irritable."

"I beg to differ most emphatically," retorted Walker desperately, finding himself driven into a corner for an argument. "I say it causes irritability and therefore isn't good, and if you want proof just you sit down on the business end of a tack."

And he fell back in bed with a look of triumph.—Pearson's Weekly.

A DARING ENGINE RIDE.

New Charles Crocker saved the Central Pacific Railroad.

"One of the most exciting and dangerous rides I ever had was made on a locomotive in California in the sixties," said an old resident of San Francisco to the writer, who had been speaking of the remarkable coolness exhibited by two men while riding behind a runaway horse.

The ride to which I refer happened shortly after Charles Crocker and a few other men inaugurated the Central Pacific railroad. The trucks of the road had been laid as far as Newcastle, and the company was in debt and despondency, and L. L. Robinson, who then owned the old original railroad from Freeport to Folsom, was laughing in his sleeve at what he called 'the Dutch Flat swindle.' The stages then went from Folsom to the great mining camps of Nevada, especially to Virginia City, and it was the boast of the Freeport and Folsom road people that the Central Pacific would never be built beyond Newcastle.

Well, one morning Charles Crocker left San Francisco on the steamboat bound for Freeport with three gentlemen, including myself. When the steamer had reached Freeport, the mail and newspapers from San Francisco for Virginia City were immediately put aboard the Freeport and Folsom train, which then hurried away on its journey. A spirited team was waiting for Mr. Crocker and his companions, and we quickly left the steamboat, got into the coach and were driven rapidly off for Sacramento City. Arriving there, we found an engine and coal tender waiting for us at the Central depot, and Mr. Crocker gave orders to the engineer to run the locomotive at every pound of steam she could carry to Newcastle.

"When we started, all of us, with the exception of Mr. Crocker, who stood at the back of the engineer, were seated in the tender on various lumps of coal and wood, and it didn't take us long to realize, from the awful jolting and swaying of the engine, that the road was unballasted and in a very poor condition for speeding. Much to our relief, after we had passed beyond the American river and our arms fairly ached from our exertions to hold on and keep ourselves from being thrown out of the tender, the engineer suddenly lowered his rate of speed and at the same time informed Mr. Crocker that it would be extremely dangerous to run any farther at the rate we had been going.

"Mr. Crocker looked annoyed and said: 'Nonsense! If you are afraid, you had better get off the engine.'

"He then took hold of the lever and pulled it to the farthest limit. Of course we all thought that Mr. Crocker was crazy and that the engine would soon jump the track. But Mr. Crocker would not listen to remonstrances, never moved a muscle and stood at the lever until we were all scared out of our wits, and the engine, panting and throbbing like a huge wild beast enveloped in a cloud of escaping steam, reached Newcastle. Here we were hustled into a waiting coach and driven away. At each ten miles between that town and Virginia City there was a relay of horses. At various points along the mountain roads even the drivers were afraid to obey Mr. Crocker's orders, and in two instances he took the reins himself and whipped the teams into a lively gallop.

"The result of the whole exciting, wild and dashing race was that Charles Crocker presented in the business office of the Virginia City Enterprise a copy of the San Francisco Bulletin and some mail matter 12 hours before the mail agent on the opposition railroad had reached the city. That was the deathblow to the Freeport and Folsom road and the salvation of the Central Pacific."—Washington Star.

Philosophy at the Zoo.

Two youths looked into a cage of monkeys.

Through their nostrils puffs of smoke came forth at regular intervals from white wrapped cigarettes. Their heads were nicely balanced by a wealth of hair parted exactly in the middle.

Light bamboo canes grasped firmly in the middle showed they were full grown men.

"See," said one, "what we have descended from!"

And they looked into the cage of monkeys and laughed.

The mother monkey called her children about her.

They climbed gravely on the perch to listen to her words.

She pointed to the young men. "See," said the mother monkey, "what some of our ancestors have degenerated into!"

And the children monkeys returned to their corners and wept.—Chicago Record.

Blood Poisoned.

FEARFUL RESULT OF IMPROPERLY TREATING AN ABSCESS.

Mrs. L. E. Browning, of Pueblo, Painfully Afflicted from a Complication of Diseases—Her Remarkable Fortitude.

From the Chief Clerk, Pueblo, Col.

"I consider Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People," she continued, "the best tonic I have ever known."

"A friend not long ago was telling me of her mother who is at a critical period in her life. She had been subject to terrible fainting spells, and the whole family would work over her. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills have not only stopped the fainting spells, but given her so much strength that she is able to take up life's duties again."

"I recommend the pills also to a young lady whose pale face made me pity her. She looked as if there wasn't a drop of blood in her body. She was so weak that she was not able to attend school, but after taking Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for awhile she has gone back to school, and with her rosy cheeks and bright eyes, she looks like another girl."

(Signed) "Mrs. L. E. Browning."

Subscribed and sworn to before me this 15th day of May, A. D. 1897.

GEORGE W. GILL, Notary Public.

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People contain, in a condensed form, all the elements necessary to give new life and richness to the blood and restore shattered nerves. They are an unfailing specific for such diseases as locomotor ataxia, partial paralysis, St. Vitus' dance, sciatica, neuralgia, rheumatism, nervous headache, the after effect of a gripper, palpitation of the heart, pale and malnourished complexion, all forms of weakness either in male or female. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are sold by all dealers, or will be sent post paid on receipt of price, 50 cents a box, or six boxes for $2.50 (they are never sold in bulk or by the 100), by addressing Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Schenectady, N. Y.

Sherman Talks of His "Bummers."

General Horace Porter in his "Campaigning With Grant" in The Century tells of the meeting of Sherman and Grant at City Point, where the former gave an account of his famous march to the sea. General Porter says:

Sherman then went on to talk about his famous "bummers," saying: "They are not stragglers or mere self-constituted foragers, as many have been led to suppose, but they are organized for a very useful purpose from the adventurous spirits who are always found in the ranks. They serve as 'feelers,' who keep in advance and on the flanks of the main columns, spy out the land and discover where the best supplies are to be found. They are indispensable in feeding troops when compelled, like my army, to live off the country and in destroying the enemy's communications. The bummers are in fact a regular institution. I was amused at what one of Schofield's officers told me at Goldsboro. He said Schofield's army was maintaining a telegraph line to keep up communication with the seacoast, and that one of my men, who was a little more 'previous' than the rest and was far in advance of my army, was seen up a telegraph pole backing away at the wire with a hatchet. The officer yelled out to him: 'What are you doing there? You're destroying one of our own telegraph lines.' The man cast an indignant look at his questioner and said as he continued his work of destruction, 'I'm one of Billy Sherman's bummers, and the last thing he said to us when we started out on this hunt was, 'Be sure and cut all the telegraph wires you come across and don't go to frolic away time asking who they belong to.'"

At Work Again.

A few applications of Salvation Oil will readily cure sprains and bruises, and heal cuts, burns and scalds. It is undoubtedly the best pain-cure on the market, and should be ready for use, in every home in the land. Mr. Frank Stubenhaber 1337 Elm St., Dubuque, Iowa, states: "I used Salvation Oil on a sprained elbow, which threatened to prevent me from working, and after several thorough rubbings, I awoke the very next morning much relieved and able to go to work. Had I not used Salvation Oil I certainly would have lost a week's work, which would have amounted to many times the cost of a bottle of Oil. Everybody should keep Salvation Oil in the house." It is sold everywhere for only 25 cents.

Consumption Cured.

BROUGHT BACK FROM THE GRAVE. Last November Mr. Joseph James, painter, of 325 W. Pearl St., Indianapolis, Ind., was at death's door with quick consumption. Wasted to a skeleton; his lungs a mass of ulceration; his death was hourly awaited by his doctor and family. He was kept in a constant stupor with opium. A friend, thinking to relieve his terrible cough, gave him a bottle of Brazilian Balm. Seeing its wonderful effect, the doctor advised its continued use. Mr. James soon after dismissed his doctor, and depended on the Balm alone. His recovery was rapid and complete, and in February he returned to work. His lungs are sound, and his weight greater than at any time in his life. His recovery is regarded as almost a miracle.

CONSUMPTION CURED.

In consumption beware of cough mixtures and prescriptions that contain opium. Opium paralyzes the nerves, and gives the comma bacillus a good chance to destroy the lungs. It is always fatal. Brazilian Balm does not contain a trace of any opiate, but stimulates the nerves with new life and power, destroys the microbes and restores to all that is left of the diseased lungs to a sound and healthy state which no other remedy has ever been known to accomplish.

FRANK O. MCCOY, Agent.

NEARLY KILLED.

Patrick O'Maley Assaulted by Frank Guinny.

ASSAULT WAS UNPROVOKED

An assault which resulted in serious injuries to Patrick O'Maley, a street railway motorman and a peaceably inclined citizen, was perpetrated by a fellow citizen, Frank Guinny, of the P. R. W. & O. at Main and Wayne streets, about 1 o'clock yesterday afternoon.

Guinny had been drinking and was quarrelsome. He met O'Maley at Main and Wayne streets and endeavored to provoke a quarrel with him, but O'Maley would neither say or do anything that would justify an attack. Once Guinny picked up a stone and threatened to throw it at O'Maley, but friends intervened and the stone was laid down again. Then O'Maley started to leave the crowd and the moment his back was turned Guinny gathered up a heavy, sharp-cornered piece of stone that had been placed out from a curb by the stonecutters working on the Main street improvement, and raising it with both hands hurled it at O'Maley's head.

THOUGHT O'MALEY WAS DEAD.

Nearly everyone who witnessed the assault thought that O'Maley had been killed outright. Several rushed to his assistance but no one attempted to detain Guinny, who slipped away and going to his conductor's caboose in the P. R. W. & O. yards, he locked himself in and did not appear again until brought out of the car under arrest. O'Maley was carried to his boarding house on Wayne, at the rear of Beedley's store, and a physician summoned. The blow he received was a terrific one and an awful gash was cut in his scalp, but fortunately his skull was not fractured and he regained consciousness about half an hour after the assault occurred. His forehead and nose were also cut and bruised by the curb stones upon which he fell. After his wounds were dressed the injured man was removed to the home of his brother on north Elizabeth street.

Patrolman Orestinger traced Guinny to the caboose and remained on guard to prevent his escape, until other officers arrived. Guinny had both doors locked but sergeant Watts found a window that was unfastened and crawling through he placed Guinny under arrest and took him to the police station. Later a friend deposited $15 for Guinny's appearance and the latter was released.

IMPROVING RAPIDLY.

Harvey Duden suffers no permanent injury from his fall.

Harvey Duden, of south West street, who fell from a ladder while painting a house on north Pierce street, is improving rapidly and is able to limp about. It is thought he sustained no permanent injury but he doesn't care to take another fall for some time.

HEALTH BOARD MEETING

Health Board met Tuesday night at 8 o'clock at the health department to discuss the health situation.

In accordance with the announcement made by the Times-Democrat yesterday the Board of Health met in special session Saturday night at 7:30 o'clock and raised the quarantine, closed on all except the houses infected from all except the houses infected with the dreaded disease. The motion to raise the quarantine and permit the reopening of schools and Sunday schools was made by Mr. Harney and was carried by a full vote of all members present. Regular Sunday school services were held at most of the churches yesterday and the schools, both public and parochial, were reopened this morning.

TWO NEW CASES.

Two new cases of diphtheria were reported to health officer Lauterbach yesterday. One case is at the home of the Rice family on west Kirby street where the quarantine has been raised about a week ago. The other new case is in a residence not previously infected, the patient being Olive Gill, who lives on Union street, south of Circular street. The lad, who is a new boy employed by Asa Galt, was out with some friends on a outing excursion yesterday afternoon and was taken quite ill and his companions assisted him to his home. Dr. Myers, who was called, found the boy suffering from diphtheria and he and Dr. Lauterbach administered anti-toxins and today the patient is considerably improved. The boys who were in company with the Gill boy have not been permitted to go to school, but are under quarantine of their own recognizance at their homes on south Union street.

THE DAWN OF PROSPERITY AT LAST VISIBLE.

Greater Promises for Greater Business Gained the Birth of New Enterprise.

A little over three years ago the Union Clothing Company opened its doors to the public. The auspicious event will never be forgotten by those who attended the two opening days and evenings of the Union. It was a happy start for the young business concern and promised nothing but success for the future. This promise has more than fulfilled itself. After an existence of three years—hard times years as they were—the Union Clothing Co. ranks today as Lima's foremost clothing house. Satisfactory goods, satisfactory prices and satisfactory treatment of every body have made the Union "The Saturday Store." Mr. Well, one of Lima's youngest business men, is a hustler, and undoubtedly to this bustling qualification may be laid his success.

A SHOE DEPARTMENT WILL BE ADDED AT THE UNION.

Success always asserts itself. It is so in this case. The new shoe department at the Union is the outcome of the success of the other departments. The rebuilding and remodeling will begin just as soon as possible. Then, standard of dollar worth of new winter apparel for men and boys has already been received and this immense stock has to be out down before it will be possible to begin their work. A gigantic sacrifice sale will be given at the Union Clothing Co. in a few days, a sale at which the new goods will suffer the same reductions as the old. Room must be made quickly, and when this is done the improvements and enlargements will be begun. Within a short time the Union, which is now Lima's best clothing store, will be Lima's best clothing and shoe store. Meanwhile we would advise you to watch the Union's ad, for date and particulars of the special sale. Unfortunately we will add here that Mr. Ed Wise, one of Lima's pioneer clothing men, and formerly proprietor of the Lima House Corner Clothing Store, has connected himself with the Union Clothing Co., where he will be pleased to see his many old time friends and customers.

ROMER-SULLIVAN.

Early Morning Wedding at St. Rose Church.

ONLY A FAVORED FEW

Witnessed the Ceremony at Six O'clock.

This morning at St. Rose church at 6 o'clock the marriage of Mr. Wilhelm J. Romer and Miss Winifred Sullivan was solemnized, Rev. James B. Mooney performing the service of blessing the ring, administering holy communion and pronouncing the words which united these two young lives. At the conclusion of the mass, which is part of the service, the organ, under the skillful hands of Miss Caldwell, gave forth the joyful strains of "Mendelssohn's wedding march."

The immediate relatives of the bride and groom and Mr. Howard R. Kohler, of St. Louis, witnessed the ceremony, at the conclusion of which they were taken to King's, where the bride and groom were seated at a table with snow white, and La France roses with ferns formed decorations of rare beauty. The breakfast was a well appointed one, served in four courses.

From the cate the bridal party went to the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Sullivan, of east Market street. At noon an elegant luncheon was served in the handsomely decorated dining room. American beauty, jaunty, not roses and palms were arranged on every available mantle and table, while the music room was charming in white and green.

The relatives remained until the departure of the happy couple on the three o'clock train this afternoon. Tomorrow was the time set for this wedding, and the news of their marriage this morning will be a surprise to their many friends, who will all sincerely wish them joy and happiness in years to come.

Mr. Romer is a native of Lima, but for the past three years has been engaged in business in St. Louis, where they will reside in the future. The bride was born in Lima and was christened, confirmed and married in St. Rose church. She graduated from the Lima high school seven years ago and since that time has been away from home much of the time studying music under Polley, of Cincinnati, and under Sauvage, of New York, and recently has filled important positions in various church choirs. In our own city she has always been loved and admired by all who knew her for her womanly character and musical ability. Many telegrams were received from well wishing friends who were aware of the important event, one particularly appropriate being from St. Louis friends as follows:

"May you be so happy that when others like you are dumb and in heaven until the other's kiss has come."

AFFIDAVITS

Offered to Show Land Asphalt Is Inferior to Lake.

THE CASE WILL BE ARGUED

By the Lawyers Next Friday Morning.

Judge Mooney Saturday afternoon continued the hearing of the injunction suit of J. W. Van Dyke against Mayor Baxter, restraining him from awarding the contract for paving west Market street to the Columbia Construction Co. The introduction of testimony occupied the entire afternoon. Several members of the council testified that they had made thorough investigation of asphalt before arriving at a decision, and were convinced that the land asphalt was as good as the lake pitch, and so awarded the contract to the Columbia company. The plaintiff introduced as evidence affidavits from well known chemists in different parts of the country, giving their opinion as to the comparative value of land and lake pitch for paving. Admission of testimony continued until 5 o'clock, when court adjourned until next Friday morning at 9 o'clock, when the case will be argued.

MARRIAGE A FAILURE.

Mrs. Core Muller has entered suit in the common pleas court for a divorce against her husband, Martin Muller. The petition alleges that they were married Jan. 26th, 1915, and that four children have been born to them. She alleges gross neglect of duty and extreme cruelty on the part of her husband and on these grounds asks the court for a dissolution of the marriage contract. She also asks for temporary alimony and temporary injunction restraining her husband from disposing of the household goods and other property and also from interfering with the children. The temporary injunction was granted as petitioned for.

CONDAMNATION SUIT.

Judge Bobb today is hearing the condemnation suit of the D. & L. N. against Gregg. The land in question lies south of the P. R. W. & O. and east of the D. & L. N.

COURT NEXT WEEK.

The October term of court opens (Continued on Fifth Page.)

"FINGERS" FOLK

Claims That "Windy" Clark was the "Main Guy"

IN THE WALTHER ROBBERY.

Claims that Clark Planned and Executed the Robbery, While He Furnished the Money and Weapons—Clark Pleads Guilty.

James Folk, who, perhaps, is better known among old associates as "Fingers" Folk, was the chief witness for the state at the preliminary hearing in the case of the state against Charles, alias "Windy" Clark, held in justice Altmir's court this morning. The prisoner is charged with having been one of the burglars who robbed the Walther tailor shop several months ago, and Folk was brought here today from the Ohio penitentiary, where he is serving a sentence for the same crime.

When placed on the witness stand Folk told an interesting story, and one, that with one exception, the police believe to be straight and true. The exception is, the police believe, the concealing of a third party, for on the night of the robbery when the police had a brush with the burglars, who were then driving away with the stolen goods loaded into a wagon, there were three, or possibly four men in the gang, while Folk now claims that Clark and himself were the only persons implicated.

SAYS CLARK PLANNED IT.

Folk claimed in his testimony that Clark planned the robbery and persuaded him to furnish the horse and wagon to haul the goods away. He said that Clark came to supper with him at his father's home that evening. They separated after eating supper, Clark going to the neighborhood of the tailor shop while he went home and went to bed. After his parents were asleep he left the house by crawling through a window and took his father's horse and wagon. He drove about for some time and finally met Clark, who had already committed the robbery and was waiting for the arrival of the wagon so that they could get the goods away. He said that when the police tried to stop them Clark struck one of them and they drove south on Pierce street. Clark got scared because the police were after them and jumped out of the wagon and headed for the O. & E., leaving him with the wagon and goods. Folk said he then drove on out the Spencerville road, threw the goods to one side of the road, returned home by a circuitous route, and putting the rig away, returned to bed.

Folk's father identified Clark as the man who had eaten supper at his house on the night of the robbery. At the close of the hearing justice Altmir bound the prisoner over to the grand jury and placed the amount of $1,000 in default of which Clark was taken back to the county jail.

There will be a Democratic meeting at the assembly room of the Court House, on Monday evening, October 11, at 7:30 o'clock. Good speakers will be in attendance to address the meeting.
